Some of the Very Coldest Days in the World's History.

(Cleveland Herald.)

It is a bit of a coincidence that the comet upon which Napoleon's soldiers gazed seventy years ago, when they were making that dreadful march from Moscow, which resulted in the death from cold and exposure of 400,000 men, should be accompanied on its reappearance with a bitter cold spell of weather. When it swept out of sight the world witnessed an unusually severe winter.
The incident, as well as the present cold snap, recalls other severe winters. In October, 763, and February, 764, the denizens of the cities of mosques and minarets were astonished by a cold spell of weather, and the two seas at Constantinople were frozen over for twenty days. In 1063 the Thames was frozen over for fourteen weeks. In 1107 the cold was so intense in England that all small birds perished, and in 1433 the large fowls of the air were driven by the terrible cold into the towns and cities of Germany.

In 1498 the winter was so severe in Flanders that the wine distributed was cut with hatchets.

The year 1658 was noted for cold weather in England. Thousands of forest and shade trees were split by frost, blizzards and stock perished, a line of stages ran on the Thames for several weeks, and shops were built on the ice in the middle of the Thames.

In 1691 the wolves were driven by the cold into Vienna, where they attacked men and cattle on the streets.
In 1810 quicksilver froze in the thermometer bulbs at Moscow. One of the most remarkable changes of temperature was witnessed at Horosey and Hammersmith, near London, in 1867. The thermometer was 3 degrees below zero on the 4th of January, and seventy-two hours later it had leaped to 55 degrees above zero.

With respect to America some of the remarkable cold spells were as follows: In 1730, and again in 1821, New York harbor was frozen over so that teams were driven across the ice to Staten Island. The neighboring State of Indiana saw weather cold enough to congeal the mercury. In 1865. The winter of 1881 was made memorable by cold weather. On the 13th and 26th days of January, many deaths occurred from the intense cold, and the inhabitants of Mobile saw the thermometer sink to zero.

A record of cold sledges would be imperfect without a mention of the terribly sudden storm that swept over the country in 1862, which has gone into history as the cold New Year's. A drayman was frozen to death in Cincinnati while driving along the street; a man climbing a fence in Minnesota froze to death and tumbled over into the snow, while the loss of human and animal lives in all parts of the country was immense.

There will be five eclipses during 1881—three of the sun, none of which will be visible in this country and two of the moon, both of which will be visible in this country, the first, a partial eclipse, occurring early in the morning of April 10th, and the other a total eclipse occurring in the evening of October 4th.

All in the Family.

Texan Sayings.
"Your father was nothing but a simple stone mason."
"I know where you got that information," quietly remarked the other.
"From whom did I get it?"
"From your father."
"How do you know that?"
"Because your father was my father's hodgepodge."

L'ENFANT TERRIBLE.
It was in the cars. The ladies were sitting together, busily engaged in conversation. On the seat facing them sat a little 5-year-old boy. He had been looking out at the window, apparently absorbed in contemplation of the moving panorama of the outside world. Suddenly he turned from the window; he began searching about the car, exclaiming in a high, piping voice: "Mamma, which man is it that looks so funny?" "Sh!" cautioned his mother. But the boy wasn't to be hushed. "I don't see the man with the bald head, mamma, and the funny red nose." "The 'sh' was repeated. By this time the car was in a titter, save and excepting one elderly gentleman with a very bald head and a very red nose. His eyes were riveted upon his paper with a fixedness that was quite frightful. Again the boy:
"Oh! now I see him! Ho! what a bright nose! What makes it so red, mamma?" "Georgie!" shouted his mother in a stage whisper. But Georgie was not to be stopped. "Mamma," he continued, "what made you say he had a light-house on his face? I don't see no light-house." Again "Georgie!" and this time with a slight shake. Once more the piping voice, the bald-headed passenger gazing at his paper more fiercely than ever and growing redder every moment. "Mamma, I don't think his head looks like the State House dome.
It's shiny like it, but it isn't so yellow." While the titter went round again, Georgie's mother whispered rapidly to the boy, and gave her hopeful a box on each ear, which seemed to partially divert his attention from the bald-headed passenger, but not entirely. He cried once more, through his tears: "You said his nose was as red as a beet, mamma; I didn't say nothing!" Strange to say, the bald-headed passenger didn't take part in the suppressed laughter that followed; but he put on his hat, and hid his nose in his paper, over which he glared at the boy as though he wanted to eat him. And yet, wherein was the boy to blame?—Boston Transcript.

COPIED COMMENTS.

THE CHINESE FASHION.
In China when a young man wants to get a wife he sends a present of boiled rice to the girl's mother. When he wants to get rid of an oppressive and all-pervading mother-in-law, however, he proceeds as they do in civilized countries. He goes out and hangs himself.—Louisville Commercial.

ALWAYS IN FRONT.

A young American lady named Whedlock, who has been studying music in Paris, France, recently attracted the attention of a director of an Italian opera and was engaged by him for his company. She made her debut a few days since under the name of Mlle. Volda as "Eliora" in "Hernani," and was greatly applauded. With Mary Anderson, Lotta and Mlle. Volda, America may take front rank on both the dramatic and lyric stages.—Henderson Journal.

THE POETS FATE.

He came slowly and sadly into our office. His hair was long, and his small moustache was coated with icicles. He had a weak voice when he slowly said:

"This is a cold cruel world; genius is not appreciated, I long for a better world."
"We have feelings for the poor and needy; and if anybody appreciates genius we do, said the clerk."
"Well I will see. Now I have composed a beautiful poem, which I will read to you." The boys showed some uneasiness at this moment, some retreating to see Pat Nolan, and one went to tell the devil to set the trigger.

Our visitor slowly commenced:
"Oh, I love to see the beautiful snow!" Bang—smoke—corpse. The janitor slowly carried him to the undertaker with the following note:
"Charge to the office."—B. G.

In 1854 there were 254 daily papers published in the United States. In 1860 the number had increased to 387, in 1870 to 574, and in 1880 to 981. The circulation, which in 1850 was but 758,454, reached over 3,500,000 copies in 1880.
The average circulation of the daily newspapers is placed by the census commissioners at 3,704, which must reduce the actual circulation of a great many dailies far below the paying point. The average circulation of weeklies connected with dailies is 3,219, and of those not connected with dailies 1,824.

In concluding an article on the last corn crop an Alabama editor remarked:
"We have on exhibition in our sanctum a magnificent pair of ears."

THE MYSTERY OF HOTEL CON-VERSATION.
Under all circumstances, whether the occasion be one of courtesy or condolence, joy or sorrow, an American weaves into his speech idiomatic expressions and conversational surprises the more grotesque that they are so unconscien-tiously delivered. Nothing is more comical than the puzzled astonishment of the English tourist at the ordinary conversation of steamboat and railroad passengers in this country, and their endeavors to reconcile the utterances of the speakers with their utterly unaccustomed expressions.

"Waiter," said a guest at a hotel breakfast table, in the most matter-of-fact way, and without changing a muscle of his face, "these flannel cakes seem to have been stamped out of sole-leather by a steam die."

"Yess'r," replied the equally unconcerned waiter.
"Just send up a plateful to my room; I'll have my boots last soled with them," continued the matter-of-fact boarder, as he sampled another dish.

"All right, sir," responded the imperturbable waiter as he changed the plates.
But a couple of just arrived Londoners, sitting at the same table, were profoundly mystified, and even ordered cakes to test their durability personally.

History of Our County.

The centennial commission in 1876 strongly recommended the preparation and presentation of local history, a recommendation that was earnestly approved by the President of the United States, and the people agreed to carry out their aim. No acceptable history of this county has been published, although steps have been taken in almost every thoroughly organized community throughout the country, to compile and place in permanent form the annals of each neighborhood, thus relieving from oblivion much interesting and valuable information that year by year is being irretrievably lost through the death of old citizens and the passing of time. We are glad to learn that the matter of publishing the history of our county has been undertaken by reliable and responsible parties of long experience in historical work. Messrs. F. A. Hatley & Co., historical publishers, are now engaged with a large force of men collecting material for such a history. The work is in charge of Col. W. H. Perrin, a citizen of Louisville, and formerly Secretary of the old Louisville Journal company, and a historical writer of six years experience. It will facilitate the work and add materially to its correctness and completeness for all of our old citizens, or indeed any others, who have any historical facts in their possession to furnish them to Col. Perrin, the managing editor. We are all interested in having a complete and correct history of our county, and to that end should not hesitate to contribute such information as comes to our knowledge.

Mr. Cunningham is a very worthy gentleman, and he is congratulated upon winning a lovely bride. The latter is a sister of Judge Winfree and is a petite brunette, pretty and captivating. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party took the 3:13 train for Henderson. Mr. Cunningham was accompanied by three young gentlemen friends of Henderson—Messrs. E. W. Winfield, James Haffey and C. F. Kleiderer. The young couple have our warmest congratulations and best wishes for future happiness.

WINSTON HENRY, Sec'y.

NEAR CHURCH HILL.

January 15, 1881.

Mr. Editor:

The quiet little town and neighborhood of Church Hill has been so well and so pleasantly represented lately that your correspondent felt that a letter from Oliver Branch would be de trop (i.e. French term is inadvisable just here) so perhaps wisely kept silent.

Since last I wrote the holidays have ended and '83 has been numbered with the things that were, and the new year is with us in all its tender infancy, wearing its purest, whitest robes just now, but somehow engendering a feeling of sadness. There come up periods in the lives of all when it grows unpleasant to change dates. The years we leave behind become little milestones that rear their heads defiantly and make us feel that we are not as young and fresh and carefree as we used to be—they are sentinels arrayed against us, that like Banquo's ghost will not down at our bidding, and too it is ever sad to give up the old for the new. Some days can never be repeated, some steps never retraced.

"Ah well, what needs it what we say,
'Tis thus the world has run away,
And when our little course is run, Our friends will do as we have done, So stop regrets, let's sigh no more, Here's health and wealth to '84."

The first term of Edgewood Academy, under the supervision of its present teacher, closed on the evening of the 11th. Mr. Jno. Johnson, one of the trustees of the school, made the closing remarks and awarded the premiums, which were given for the highest grade in the several classes, and to the following pupils: Miss Janie Massie, Dawson Springs; Sallie Knight, neighborhood; Walter Ford, neighborhood. Johnnie Ford was awarded the premium for prompt attendance at school, not having lost a day or received a tardy mark during the entire term. The second session of this school opened on the 14th with as full an attendance as could have been expected in the country and during such unfavorable weather.

On the evening of the 12th, Mr. Wm. E. Adcock celebrated his birthday by a pleasant reunion of friends and relatives. Mrs. Adcock, with her usual grace and characteristic hospitality, received and entertained her guests, who fully appreciated her efforts in their behalf as well as the elegant collation so beautifully spread before them. Each and all bore away pleasant recollections of the evening, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Adcock many happy returns of a similar occasion.

The severe winter we have been having recently has given our physicians additional work.

We have had several cases of Pneumonia. Mr. Henry Humphreys has been quite ill, now convalescent. Mrs. Jns. Adams, of Church Hill, is still quite ill. Also Mr. Browning with the same disease.

There is a dearth of items of interest in the neighborhood.

Market a shade stronger with nothing but low grades offering. The outlook is certainly encouraging for an active, strong market in the future.

Gov. Knott has recently had the tendency to exercise one of his official prerogatives and pardon a couple of convicts without asking the consent of the Covington Commonwealth, and that self-appointed adviser of the Governor shakes his long, bony finger at him and says:

"Governor Knott, if you have any respect for public opinion, you will go slow in the pardoning business."

It is to be hoped that Gov. Knott will not resign on account of this dissatisfaction with his administration.

"Old Rip's New Year."

"(Old Rip) the shoemaker located on the corner of Virginia and Court streets, issued the following New Year's Address, which we commend to the lovers of the sublime art of poetry.—ED.)

A Happy New Year to you all,
And give them a home in glory's plain,
Where angels hover round,
This is all I can say just now,
In politics I've no choice,
Dr. speak of Hydrants or Water Works,
Nor to indulge in empty words.

So if you're a mind to call on me,
And see what the boys really want,
You can find me quietly pegging away,
Old shoes that I mend, to me was sent,
Saw if you will have patience a little while,
I'll not detain you long.

And if you bring your work to me,
An sure I'll not use you wrong.

Large Funds are collected every Year,
For the Heaton Child,
But they over the poor at home;
Upon the Christmas tree,
There is a kind Angel in this place,
Who has thought of the boys before,
And brought her charity into, to them;

For such as those Lord will remember,
When the trumpet sounds,
And give them a home in glory's plain,

You can find me quietly pegging away,
Old shoes that I mend, to me was sent,
Saw if you will have patience a little while,
I'll not detain you long.

And if you bring your work to me,
An sure I'll not use you wrong.

Large Funds are collected every Year,
For the Heaton Child,
But they over the poor at home;
Upon the Christmas tree,
There is a kind Angel in this place,
Who has thought of the boys before,
And brought her charity into, to them;
At the Shanty shop.

For such as those Lord will remember,
When the trumpet sounds,
And give them a home in glory's plain,
Where angels hover round,
This is all I can say just now,
In politics I've no choice,
Dr. speak of Hydrants or Water Works,
Nor to indulge in empty words.

So if you're a mind to call on me,
And see what the boys really want,
You can find me quietly pegging away,
Old shoes that I mend, to me was sent,
Saw if you will have patience a little while,
I'll not detain you long.

And if you bring your work to me,
An sure I'll not use you wrong.
